

Ben Ramalingam

I am a freelance researcher, consultant and writer specialising in international development and humanitarian issues. I wrote Aid on the Edge of Chaos, a book focusing on complexity sciences and international aid, published by Oxford University Press:

www.aidontheedge.info.

I undertake a wide range of research and advisory projects across the field of international cooperation. Recent assignments include:

- Director of DFID project on applying complex systems tools across UK wealth creation programmes
- Lead evaluator of Swiss government interventions in nine fragile and conflict-affected states
- Co-author of IPCC Special Report on Extreme Weather Events
- Lead author of NGO consortium review of partnerships with local and national organisations during crisis response
- Review of World Bank investment in South-South cooperation

I hold honorary positions at the London School of Economics, the Overseas Development Institute, the Institute of Development Studies at Sussex University and Centre for Research on Innovation Management (CENTRIM).
